

Charles Buckwalter is an international publishing executive with over 40 years' experience directing and developing business-to-business and special interest magazines and newspapers serving the USA, Latin America and other international markets. Co-founder of Conexion International Media. Former corporate staff positions with prominent publishing houses, including Billboard Magazine, Thomas International Publishing, Miami Herald, News World Communications, McGraw Hill and others. B.S., Public Relations/Advertising, Columbia University, New York City. Certificate, Sales Management School, American Marketing Association. Author, white papers on publishing in Latin American and China, American Business Press.